Course Credit, Limits and Load
Most courses earn three semester credits, while a few carry one or six credits. All courses are designed for upper-division undergraduate students. With the exception of Danish Language & Culture, all courses are taught in English. Courses at DIS include a blend of lectures, group work, and field study visits in or near Copenhagen.

Students must take at least 12 credits per semester and may take up to 18, including no more than five 3-credit classes (or one 6-credit and three 3-credit classes). Most students take two to three courses in their major or a related field, and one or two courses from a completely different discipline.

Credits
Credits will be converted on a one-to-one basis (e.g. 4-credit course with DIS will also receive 4 credits at UW).

Grades and Grade Conversions
If you took a class for pass/fail, you will receive S or U grades. The grading conversion scale from DIS to UW is:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If grades from abroad are reported as:</th>
<th>UW-Madison equivalent grade</th>
</tr>
</thead>

DIS note to UW students

Congratulations! You have been directly admitted to DIS, Danish Institute for Study Abroad. UW has determined that you meet the acceptance criteria and have the qualifications to succeed in a study abroad setting.

We are thrilled to have you joining us next term. Though you won’t be leaving for Copenhagen for several months, your study abroad experience has already started. You have chosen a program, applied, and now you will begin creating your DIS experience through our student registration system.

With many course and housing options, we know you will find options that fit your interests, allowing you to separate from your friends. In order to ensure the broadest spectrum of viewpoints, DIS reserves the right to limit the number of students from one institution enrolling in the same course, housing option, or program study tour. We find this gives all students a chance to meet new people and be encouraged to engage with their new community.

DIS guarantees housing to all students who request DIS-arranged housing, however, this does not mean that all students will get their first preference. All DIS housing options offer unique and exciting opportunities so do not worry if you do not receive your first preference! You will receive an email to help you choose the housing options that are best for you – read it carefully and ask questions if you are unsure! You may review all DIS housing options here and read about our housing policies here.

Living in a European city means commuting to classes, field studies, to the airport, and to your immersion activities – every single DIS student commutes. Luckily, Copenhagen has one the best public transportation systems in the world!

DIS requires a non-refundable program deposit of US $500 to assure you a place in your program. The deposit is paid by IAP. By proceeding to student registration, you indicate that you understand these points and the expectations that DIS has of you. If you have concerns regarding any of the above, call the DIS North American Office (NAO) to discuss further or visit your study abroad office to explore other program options.

Over the coming months, DIS will communicate with you primarily through email. Please make sure that the email address you provide to DIS is up-to-date and frequently checked. If you have any questions, please contact the NAO at 800 247-3477 or dis@umn.edu.

Med venlig hilsen (Kind regards),
NAO Enrollment Services Team
