Massey Albany Campus, Auckland

The largest and most cosmopolitan city of 1.3 million, Auckland is New Zealand’s commercial and economic centre. Auckland is popularly known as the “City of Sails” because of the hundreds of yachts to be seen in its three harbours.

A city of immigrants from its inception, Auckland’s colourful mix of European, Maori, Pacific Island and Asian cultures makes it our most international city. The sophisticated urban environment, great climate and numerous leisure options has the Auckland lifestyle ranked amongst the best in the world.

New Zealand’s newest and most modern university campus, Massey Albany, is located on the North Shore of Auckland city. The growing campus of 7,000 students is surrounded by cafés, shopping centres, cinemas, art galleries, libraries, a performing arts facility, and extensive leisure and sport facilities, including the North Harbour Sports Stadium.

The North Shore region covers 120km of coastline and includes many beautiful beaches. Part of the North Shore’s appeal is that it is just a short drive from the city lights and downtown lifestyle of central Auckland, yet it has a real community feel and beachside character. The North Shore is served by motorway links to Auckland and the International Airport as well as to major rail and ferry terminals. City bus services are efficient and relatively inexpensive.
